Bethpage, N.Y., February 17, 1971 -- Grumman Aerospace Corporation today announced the elections of a new Board Chairman, President, Senior Vice President, and Vice President following a regular meeting of the Aerospace Board of Directors. Grumman Aerospace is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Grumman Corporation.

Clint Towl, who is Chairman of the Board of Grumman Corporation, resigned the Chairmanship of the Aerospace subsidiary and was succeeded by former President Lew Evans, who also becomes Chief Executive Officer.

Bill Zarkowsky, former Senior Vice President, was elected President of Grumman Aerospace Corporation.

At the same Board meeting, Bill Schwendler, Chairman of the Executive Committee of Grumman Corporation, resigned his post as Vice Chairman of the Aerospace subsidiary.

Both Clint Towl and Bill Schwendler will continue to serve as Directors and Senior Executives of Grumman Aerospace Corporation.

It was also announced that Corky Meyer, a Vice President of Grumman Aerospace, was elected a Senior Vice President, and that Ross Mickey, deputy director of Aircraft Programs, was named a Vice President.

Other business conducted at the meeting resulted in the formation of an Executive Committee for Grumman Aerospace, consisting of Lew Evans (Chairman), Bill Zarkowsky, Clint Towl, and Bill Schwendler, to act as an advisory body to the Chairman and President of Grumman Aerospace.

Further details will be carried in the next regular edition of Plane News.
